SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The Vigil.

The stars are bright o'er a world of white-O'er valley and plain and hill, Wrapped deep in cold is the waiting wold,

Frozen the air, and still,
And still the house, save for clock and mouse, The family all asleep; While propped in bed, with your tousled You vigil alone do keep.

"Tut. tut! tick, tock!" says the parlor clock—

Wrathful and loud the sound;
How does it know, down there below,
Yours eyes are big and round?
"One, two, three, four-nine, ten-" one

Eleven! 'Tis monstrous late! Is that Santa Claus? No, a shy mouse

Dear, dear! so long to wait!

The floor goes "creak," but you dare no As stiffened you lie and list; And now a "snap," like a sharp "gld-dap!"

Is Santa aproaching? Hist! Not yet. You yawn. Here's the half-hour gone. Waxes the Christmas Eve. Your eyes you close-but, as goodness

'Tis only in make-believe,

A moment, just, as you fondly trust— Or till you a hundred count; So you rest in bliss (since your eyes in-sist)
While slowly the figures mount,
At fifty-five you are scarce alive— "Sixt-six-sixt-six-" how thin
Your voice, anon-"Merry Christmas, John!"

And Santa, the rogue, has been! Edwin L. Sabin.

Miss Moore's Book.

Miss Carrie Pickett Moore, the daugh-ter of Mr. J. B. Moore, who has his home at Bon Air has placed upon the Christ-mas book market, through her publishers, mas book market, through her publishers, Whittet & Shepperson, "a collection of tested Virginia recipes," under the title of "The Way to the Heart."

In her introduction, Miss Moore says: "The following recipes have been tested, and I have found them correct in every and I have found them correct in svery proportion; also mixing and serving. They are a collection of old Virginia recipes, many of them handed down and used for three generations. Having tried them, I feel justified in recommending them to the public as being safe and sure, that is if the rules are carefully followed for mixing and preparing the dishes. All of them are not my own some having been mixing and preparing the disness. All of them are not my own, some having been given me by old friends, but I have used them so successfully, that I feel they belong to me by right of long usage. I trust the housekeeper into whose hands this little book may fall, will find it a help to her, and that in the future, it will be the successful and the successful to the successful the successful to the successful the successful the successful to the successful the success make cooking a pleasure and not a care."

The introduction is the best review the The introduction is the best review the book could possibly have. It will not fail to be appreciated by sensible, practical women. The arrangement of the recipes, which are clearly and concisely written, is excellent. The little volume is well printed, attractively bound, and will doubtless win its welcome into many Richmond households during the holi-

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

Whatever your occupation may be and however crowded your hours with affairs, do not fall to secure at least a few minutes every day for refreshment of your inner life with a bit of poetry.—Professor Charles Eliot Norton.

THE LYTTEL BOY.

By EUGENE FIELD.

This poem is written in imitation of early English spelling.

The portrait, biographical sketch and autograph of Eugene Field have already been given along with other selections from his works.

SOME time there ben a lyttel boy That wolde not renne and play, And helpless like that little tyke Ben allwais in the way. 'Goe, make you merrie with the rest,' His weary moder cried;

But with a frown he catcht her gown And hong untill her side.

That boy did love his moder well, Which spake him faire, I ween; He loved to stand and hold her hand And ken her with his een; His cosset-bleated in the croft, His toys unheeded lay,-He wolde not goe, but, tarrying soe, Ben allwais in the way.

Godde loveth children and doth gird His throne with soche as these, And he doth smile in plaisaunce while They cluster at his knees; And some time, when he looked on earth And watched the bairns at play, He kenned with joy a lyttel boy Ben allwais in the way.

And then a moder felt her heart How that it ben to-torne. She kissed eche day till she ben gray The shoon he use to worn; No bairn let hold until her gown Nor played upon the floore,-Godde's was the joy: a lyttel boy in January, has been a guest of honor at numerous entertainments recently. Her friends here will be interested in the mention of these social events; taken from the Calveston News;

Ben in the way no more! This series began in The Times-Dispatch Sunday, October 11, 1903. One is published each day.

Miss Mensing, one of the bridesmaids for the Clarke-Moss wedding in January, entertained the bridesmaids and a few intimate friends of the honorce with a novelty shower yesterday afternoon from 0 until 6. In view of the bride-eiect's Christian name, "Rose," the afternoon was given over to the flower of the same name. "Hidden Roses," a guessing contest, each answer of which included the word rose, was played during the first part of the afternoon. Miss Ella Sealy won the prize, a Christiy picture, entitled "A Duet Without Words." This Miss Scaly presented to Miss Moss, After the rose contest the guests left the drawing room and repaired to the library to endoy the shower. The souvenirs that each guest brought were arranged in a large-punch bowl. To each gift was attached a red ribbon and a red rose. The whole was bilden with moss and only the roses on the top told of what lay hidden at the roots. The idea of the rose and the moss symbolized the full name of the young lady complimented. Miss Moss drew forth rose by rose, and at the end of each found a dainty gift. As the tissue wrappings were uncovered the round table took on the appearance of Christinas morning. Luncheon of clicken salad, tea and Charlotte Russe, bon bons and nuts was served."

Mr. Herschey will be host for a box tarty in compliment to Miss Rosa Moss and her bridesmaids. The attraction will be "Babes From Toyland." The two lower boxes will be occupied by Mr. Herschey's guests. The after-theatre supper will be enjoyed at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Worltz O. Kopperl will chaperon. The guests will include Miss Moss, Miss Pitcher, Miss Grosham, Miss Adoue, Miss Settle, Miss Lowe, Miss Mensing and Messrs. Boyer Gonzales, Clay Stone Briggs, W. E. Black, Baxter, Dr. W. P. Breath and the host, Mr. James Scondid Herschey.

Miss Johnston's Reception.

Miss Johnston's Reception.

Miss Mary Johnston's at home yesterday, from 5 to 7 P. M., was a very charming affair. House decorations throughout were in red and green, holly, mistietoe, rad sinded lamps, red carnations and big bunches of mistietoe tied with red ribbons, carrying out the Christmas idea. Receiving with Miss Johnston were Miss Robinson. Miss Margaret Watkins and Miss Rose Morris. Miss Johnston wore a black lace robe over white taffeta. She had a corsage bouquet of violets, and pearl ornaments. Miss Hobinson was in blue crope de chine; false Watkins, in white liberty satin, over pink alik, and Miss Morris, in voiet colored slik mult with white lace trimmings.

Miss Mary Greensboro, Miss Johnston's aunt, who was in the rear drawing-room, wore black slik with point lace. Little Miss Louile Johnston, who assisted in doing the honors, had on a pretty freek of pink silk and chiffon.

Refreshments were served by a number of charming young siris, and the parlors were througed from 5 to 7. Miss Johnston made herself most agreeable to callers and guests received a delightful impression of her cordiality and graciousness.

Out-of-Town Society.

At the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Lindsay Glover, the daughter of Mr. C. C. Glover, to Minister Van Swinderen, of the Netherlands, which took place in the Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D. C., at noon Wednesday, the Rt. Rev. Bishop Satterlee and the Rev. Dr. McKim, rector of the church, were the celebrants. brants.

Kim, rector of the church, were the celebrants.

The bride came in with her father. She were a simply made princess robe of white satin, with a guimpe of point lace. Orange blossoms held her tuile well in place, and she carried lilles of the valley and white orchids. Miss Hagner's gown was of white voile, with bodice effects in cream lace. Her white hat was shirred with light blue velvet and had gauze strings tied under the chin. At the chancel awaiting them were the bridesgroom and his best man, Baron Moncheur, the Belgian minister.

The church was handsomely decorated with white chrysanthemums, Bride roses, palms and lilles of the valley.

Mr. Van Swinderen and his bride left Washington in the afternoon for a wedding trip, but will return in time to take their places in the diplomatic line at the White House reception on New Year's

"The Lady" drove away yesterday

"The Lady" drove away yesterday from "Povery Row," as the tenement at No. 835 Eleventh Avenue, is known, and the place mourned. Other tenants who hated her when she first appeared a tearful retinue as they saw her lirted enderly into a Roosevelt Hospital ambulance, clasping to her breast a two-days-old baby girl.

She was Mrs. Margaret Kennedy, and until five months ago had lived in a cozy little home in Harlem with her husband. Charles. He died of pneumonia, leaving her penniless with three little girls to provide for. Rents are cheap in "noverty Row," and she took two small rooms, for which she paid $5 a month.

She was gentle, made no acquaintances and never gossiped, and "Poverty Row," took an active dislike to her at first because she was not understood. They called her derisively, "The Lady," Then stories were took how she had stopped to pick up Mrs. Kate Reilly's baby, which had false in the street, and again wen she sat up all night to nurse Mrs. Fleming, the junitress, after a hard d.y's work. Mrs. Kennedy had had ample reason at first to know how unpopular she was with the other tenants, and not until Monday did she learn of the change of sentiment. Then baby Bilzabeth came, and Tuesday there was nothing in the house to ear. The Lady' was despairing when Mrs. Fleming tip-toed into the sick room with a humper of food. She didn't to, ..., Kennedy that it had depleted the cup-boards of 'Poverty Row.' But yesterday the oaer families were unable to help "The Lady." and Mrs. Fleming notified Policeman Maddigan, of the West Sixtycighth Street Station.

He was deeply moved by the helpess ness of the family, and sent for food. Then Dr. Irving was summoned from Roosyelt Hospital, where Mrs. Kennedy was taken. Some little time later the chidren were cared for by Sisters of Cnarity, and they will have a good home until Mrs. Keinnedy will have a good home until Mrs. Keinnedy sale to make a hew one for them.—seew York World.

WORK WELL RECEIVED. Poems of Mr. Carter Wormeley

Highly Commended.

Highly Commended.

A very flattering reception is being given the book of neems just published, by Mr. Carter W. Wormley. The following letter is one of many he has received from appreciative friends:

Richmond, Va., Dec. 21, 1904.

My Dear Mr. Wormley:

I have read your volume and have been very favorably impressed by many of the poems. I must disclaim any qualifications to criticize vorse, but I think I cannot be mistaken in describing imaginative insight, warm emotional sensibility and rare musical charm to "Waters of Marah," "Over the Hills," why I Love Thee," "My Dream," "Evening Bells' and "Good Night."

With cordial good wishes, I am, Yours faithfully.

NEW SYSTEM ABLE TO TYPEWRITE OVER WIRES

An invention which is expected to revolutionize the telegraph business, and which has been in operation on the lines of the western Union Telegraph Company for some weeks, was announced yesterday by Assistant General Manager J. C. Barciar, of that company. Mr. Barciary is the inventor.

He claims for his invention that it does away with the receiving operation. At each end of the telegraph incompantity of the sender is at the sending types writer, and the message to be transmitted is given to a stenographic produced, better for letter, at the other end on the receiving stype-writer.

So perfect is the machine that every motion of the typewriter under sonite of the sender is duplicated by the 1992 writer, and as he writes the message in the same. The most expert typewriter, and the paragraphing and the speed are the same. The most expert typewriter cannot write too fast for the receiver to take the message.

Mr. Barclary, who is also chief engineer for the Western Union Telegraph Company, has worked for five years to perfect the machine-Now York World.
